

College of Arts & Sciences

Gender & Women's Studies

gws.as.uky.edu

WHAT CAN A GENDER & WOMEN'S STUDIES MAJOR DO FOR YOU?

GWS will help you prosper in a career that aims for social transformation, innovation, or analysis. Your training in mixed methodologies, a variety of theoretical frameworks, and familiarity with transnational perspectives will help you develop an intellectual dexterity that can provide a competitive advantage in the job market. GWS majors are often change agents who create and follow careers fearlessly.

GENDER & WOMEN'S STUDIES MAJORS ARE ABLE TO:

- Assess political and cultural contexts
- Recognize historical patterns that perpetuate social inequalities
- Consider the ethics of cross-cultural and transnational interactions
- Contemplate new relationships between technology and the body
- Analyze a wide variety of texts – from poems, magazine ads, and digital games to legal cases, social and health policies, sermons, novels, films, popular culture, social media, and manifestos
- Create productive discussions around hot-button issues
- Conduct qualitative and quantitative research
- Write and present compelling, evidence-based arguments

GENDER & WOMEN'S STUDIES MAJORS GO ON TO BECOME:

- Educators
- International relations workers
- Nonprofit administrators
- Professional writers
- Health Center Assistants
- Non-Profit Researchers
- Political Campaign managers
- Social Workers
- Grant Writers
- Journalists
- Public Relations Directors
- Human Resources Directors

To learn more about majoring in Gender & Women's Studies visit gws.as.uky.edu.